The Loves of an Architect.

The architect, says Russell Sturgis in The Atlantic, must possess a love of building, and of heavy stones, and of good bricks, and of stout, solid walls and of handsome timbers, handsomely cut and framed. He must even love the new material, wrought and rolled iron and steel, for its great and as yet only partly known capabilities. When one is asked by a would be student of architecture about his (the student's) chances of succeeding as an architect, it is very good to find out what his proclivities are and whether he is merely interested in fine art and seized with the idea that architecture is an easy, fine art to study and to practice.

The architect should love the quarries and should visit them with eager curiosity. The cleavage of stone and its appearance in its natural bed should be not only a delight to him, but an object of close study. The architect should love the lumber yard, not to say the forest. To him the timber in itself should be a thing delightful to study and its possible uses delightful to contemplate. The architect should love the brickyard, and experiments in cements and in mortars should be his holiday amusement. And, finally, the architect must have such an eye and such a soundness of judgment that bad work cannot escape him. A familiarity with details not unlike that of a good master builder he must combine with a knowledge of principles and of possibilities far beyond that of the master builder, so that good work will come to his buildings as of inevitable sequence, and bad or even slighted work will be impossible in them.

Goldsmith's Poverty.

In 1758, two years after Goldsmith returned from his wanderings on the continent, he presented himself at Surgeons' hall for examination as a hospital mate, with the view of entering the army or navy, but he suffered the mortification of being rejected as unqualified. That he might appear before the examining surgeon suitably dressed Goldsmith obtained a new suit of clothes, for which Griffiths, the publisher of The Monthly Review, became security. The clothes were to be returned immediately when the purpose was served, or the debt was to be discharged. Poor Goldsmith, having failed in his object and probably distressed by urgent want, pawned the clothes. The publisher threatened, and Goldsmith replied:

"I know of no misery but a jail, to which my own imprudence and your letter seem to point. I have seen it inevitable these three or four weeks and, by heavens, request it as a favor—a favor that may prevent something more fatal. I have been some years struggling with a wretched being, with all that contempt and indigence bring with it, with all those strong passions which make contempt insupportable. What, then, has a jail that is formidable?"

Such was the hopelessness, the deep despair of this imprudent but amiable author who has added to the delight of millions and to the glory of English literature.—Exchange.

Matrimonial Commandments.

Matrimony has ten commandments.

These were studied out by Theodore Parker shortly before the day of his wedding. They took the form of ten beautiful resolutions, which he inscribed in his journal. They were as follows:

First.—Never, except for the best reasons, to oppose my wife's will.

Second.—To discharge all duties for her sake freely.

Third.—Never to scold.

Fourth.—Never to look cross at her.

Fifth.—Never to worry her with commandments.

Sixth.—To promote her piety.

Seventh.—To bear her burdens.

Eighth.—To overlook her foibles.

Ninth.—To save, cherish and forever defend her.

Tenth.—To remember her always in my prayers. Thus, God willing, we shall be blessed.

Rebuked.

A car conductor who wished to assist a very stout, middle aged lady to board and enter the car felt utterly abashed and rebuked when she said acridly:

"Keep your hands off'n my back, will you? If you ain't got no manners, I'll see if I can't learn you some!"

And as she walked unsteadily to a vacant seat she said for the benefit of the other passengers:

"It makes me so mad to have these here conductors callin me 'lady' an be in so familiar ev'ry way, an I guess I've learned one of 'em a lesson!"—Detroit Free Press.

New York Babies.

A Precious Bit of Shamrock.

H. Phelps Whitmarsh writes in The Century of "The Steerage of Today," his article being illustrated by Andre Castaigne. Mr. Whitmarsh draws this picture of one of his companions in the voyage that he made:

Kneeling in an upper bunk near me, a middle aged Irishman was hanging a pot containing a shamrock plant. I entered into conversation with him and learned that he was going to join his son in California, to whom he was taking the shamrock as a present.

"I hope it will live," he said, looking wistfully at the pot as it swung from the beam. "'Twas the wan thing the bhoy wanted. 'L'ave iv'ryt'ing,' says he in his letther, 'an come over. I have enough for the both of us now,' says he, 'an I can make you comfortable for the rest av your days. But,' says he, 'fetch me a livin root av shamrock if you can.'"

All Sunday we were in smooth water, running under the lee of the Irish coast. The day being fine and warm, the steerage swarmed on deck in full force. Men, women and children all crowded about the afterhatch, some playing cards, some dancing and some already making love, but for the most part they lay about the deck, sleeping and basking in the sun. In the afternoon my friend the Irishman appeared with his shamrock. He wanted to give it a "taste" of fresh air, he said. At sight of it many of the Irish girls shed tears; then, seating themselves about the old man, they sang plaintive Irish melodies until the sun went down. The sad faces of the homesick girls and the old father sitting among them, holding in his lap the precious little bit of green, presented a sight not easily to be forgotten.

The Artist and His Work.

The life of a painter, above all of a portrait painter, is one long succession of such problems, varying with the nature of the subject in kind and degree of difficulty. It follows naturally that his processes must vary, too, requiring a longer or shorter time in the working out, for which no infallible rule will serve him. In mechanical labor the rate of the machine's pulse may be gauged with certainty, the moment of completion accurately fixed beforehand. But it is not so in art. There all depends upon conditions that seem to be hourly changing. The mood of the artist, his distrust of the scheme attempted or his entire confidence in it; the state of his nerves, of his general health, nay, even the state of the weather, all affect his work. One day it advances well, but on the next self criticism steps in to impede him, and he gains nothing. The scoffing Philistine ascribes these halts and retrogressions to the weakness of the artistic temperament. Yet they are due to the work rather than to the workman; to the fact that he follows an art and not a trade. No artist can be entirely exempt from this oppressive influence, which arises afresh at each new effort with as many heads as Hydra. There are those, indeed, who estimate the value of their product by the depth and number of the despairs it has engendered.—T. R. Sullivan in Scribner's.

Irreverent Jokes.

We have observed with regret that newspaper witticisms containing irreverent expressions have greatly multiplied of late and that some so called highly respectable publications aid in their circulation. It is not probable that any harm is intended to be done by those who coin or those who publish these objectionable effusions. In many cases at least they are doubtless the result of an exuberant humor that has not been sufficiently chastened by culture and which is consequently allowed to throw off the check of reason. An aged clergyman, who long conducted a religious journal, adopted a rule in regard to this matter which, we think, is a good one. He said, "Whenever a joke reflects at all upon religion or is calculated to raise merriment at the expense of things usually held sacred I will not publish it, but if it is innocent of these objections or turns the laugh upon the devil I cheerfully give it a place."—New York Ledger.

Plenty of Work.

Allison, the historian, in 1830 writes to the editor of Blackwood:

"I have settled to send you for your next number in August:

"First.—An article on reform.

"Second.—A review of Salvandy's 'History of Poland.'

"Third.—A review of Dr. Christison's work (on poisons).

"I will send you the Salvandy on Tuesday morning, July 12; the article on reform on Friday evening, July 15; Dr. Christison's review on Monday or Tuesday, the 18th or 19th."

Mrs. Oliphant, whose pen has been one of the most prolific in our own day and who must have known what she was writing about, adds:

"Three articles in a week! 'Maga' has many hardworking servants with whose habits the present writer has some acquaintance, but upon this record we look with awe."—Exchange.

He Rides Free.

An English paper says that Bishop Ellicott of Gloucester enjoys the privilege of being allowed to travel on any railway in England free of charge. This unusual favor was conferred upon him by the various officials in recognition of his heroic exertions in administering spiritual consolation to the dying victims in a railway accident near Tottenham, notwithstanding his own very serious injuries. This was while the bishop was still a young man.

A CLEVER FIRE HORSE.

The Clear Headed Animal That Chief Webber of Boston Used to Drive.

The rule in the Boston department is to reach the fire as soon as it can be done with safety. When an alarm comes in, the firemen have that rule in mind. They are not thinking about posing for the public, but what they are likely to find at the end of their ride, and when accidents occur in nine cases out of ten they are more likely to be due to the carelessness or fright of the public than to the recklessness of the firemen themselves. There are approximately 2,000 alarms a year in this city, to each of which from one to eight pieces respond. Compare the activity and momentum thus let loose, but skillfully controlled, with the total resultiug casualties of a year, and the showing will justify the department as a whole every time.

The horses themselves share not only the spirit but the knowledge of the situation, and to their training and intelligence is due to no small degree the comparative exemption from serious accidents which the department enjoys. A few years ago Chief Webber drove as his fire horse an animal which well exemplified these characteristics. He had a head like a wedge, and he could run for a deer. His fire gait was a run. He was famous for economizing his opportunities. Even in a thickly crowded street, if he saw a hundred feet clear in front of him, he made it on the run. If an obstruction suddenly appeared, he would brace himself and skate over the pavement until his momentum was overcome. Then with the next opening the feat was repeated, while he writhed in and out like a snake among intercepting teams and usually was among the first arrivals at the scene of the fire. On one occasion he took himself and the buggy to a fire some distance from quarters without a driver and arrived safely and at the right box. The uninitiated who saw his movements might have called them reckless, but during his five or six years of service he attended more fires than any other horse in the department, and no serious accident to himself or others resulted.—Boston Transcript.

Miracles and Dilettanteism.

"He (Pugin) visited Sant' Andrea della Fratte, the scene of the miraculous conversion of Abbe Ratisbonne, the Jew. Abbe Ratisbonne entered the church a Jew and came out a Christian, having seen there, he stated, a vision of our Lady. 'The story,' Pugin said after seeing the church, 'is demonstrably false. The man could not have said a prayer in such a hideous church. Our Lady could not have chosen such a church for a vision. The man could have had no piety in him to have staid in such a church at all.'

"The friend to whom his remarks were addressed replied, 'As I heard the story, Ratisbonne was not at the moment praying, but thinking of the uncouthness of the architecture of the place.' Pugin's whole face changed. 'Is that so? Then he was a man of God. He knew what true Christianity was, though he was a Jew. I honor him. Our Lady would have come to him anywhere. The story is demonstrably true.'"—"Life of Cardinal Wiseman," by Wilfrid Ward.

Duck Eggs in an Albumen Factory.

Near Chingkiang, China, is a great albumen factory for the utilization of the duck eggs which are produced in that region in enormous quantities, flocks of 4,000 and 5,000 ducks being by no means uncommon. The eggs are broken at the rate of from 40,000 to 60,000 per day by women, who separate the white from the yolk, the former being carefully cleaned and dried until they resemble fish glue, when they are packed in 400 pound cases lined with zinc. The yolks are passed through sieves into 25 gallon receptacles, mixed with a salt and borax solution, packed in 500 pound barrels and used in Europe for preparing and dressing articles of superior quality. The albumen finds a ready market in England, France and Germany for dyes for the best cotton goods.—Philadelphia Press.

Girls who have to stand on their feet most of the time work as hard as any day-laborer yet they do not get what is rightly called exercise. Close, confining, indoor occupation gives no exhilaration to the nervous system nor active circulation to the blood. It wears, tears and drags a woman's life away. The whole physical system grows sluggish and torpid under it.

No wonder so many sales girls and factory girls and housewives suffer from indigestion and constipation and bilious troubles. No wonder they are subject to the diseases of the delicate special organism of their sex. The wonder is rather that they can stand it as well as they do.

But "a poor weak woman," as she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain the most eminent medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. Occupying this position for thirty years he has had a wider practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

The most perfect remedy ever devised for weak and delicate women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. His "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only permanent digestive and nutrient tonic. The two medicines taken alternately, form the most perfect and successful course of treatment ever prescribed for female troubles complicated with a sluggish, overwrought, nervous, diseased constitution. In severe constipation Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be occasionally taken with the others. They never gripe.

THE HIGH SCHOOL,

Its Relation to the Community.

Following is the conclusion of Vice-Principal Sims' address, delivered at the recent commencement exercises of the Class of '98, the first part of which appeared in last week's issue:

"As a majority of the pupils entering the High School do not intend going to the University, it would seem an injustice that they should be compelled to pursue studies whose prime purpose is preparation for higher education. It would be a rank injustice, a serious wrong, if the course outlined were one that prepared for a technical course or a professional school Such, however, is not the case and there is no injustice, no wrong.

The college at the University, for which the scholar makes preparation, is the least technical and most liberal of all, the college of social science. In the selection of studies necessary to be pursued in order to meet the requirements of this college such studies have been selected which in themselves afford the best opportunities for mental discipline, general culture and a fit preparation for the discharge of the duties of life. To justify the selection of studies it is not necessary to enter upon any lengthy discussion. The selection depends upon the conception one has of the purposes of secondary education and of the proper means of pursuing that purpose.

The purpose of such education is not to afford a trade or profession. Its value is not to be measured by dollars and cents. It has a much higher, a much nobler purpose than that of mere utility. Its value can only be estimated by the good its graduates do in the community where they reside. This, then is the purpose of the school to prepare its pupils to be good members of their community. The education received should give them a fund of information, a breadth of thought, an ease in expression, an honesty of purpose, a firmness of conviction that will make stronger men and women and aid them to perform better their part in life, whether public or private. It should endeavor to broaden their views, strengthen their reasoning powers, cultivate their feelings, inculcate a work habit and above all establish a faith in and a respect for obedience, truth, honesty and integrity. In short the aim, purpose and endeavor of the High School should be to develop and strengthen the pupil's character. This purpose needs no defense. It may need exposition and explanation to some minds, but to any one who considers education as education by the community and for the community this purpose certainly must appeal as true and correct.

And so with this purpose, the endeavor has been to give such studies as will by their information and culture give a foundation and basis for truth and refined thought and such others as will, by their discipline and training, give the ability to think accurately and express clearly the thoughts based upon their broader views and more enlightened intelligence. Yet, no studies in themselves can accomplish this purpose. It is necessary while the pupils are learning, broadening and developing that they have an opportunity for action, an apportunity to be what they think they ought to be. So the school has been a little community in itself. The pupils have been given an opportunity to govern themselves under due restraint. They have been treated as thinking, reasonable beings with the power to discriminate between right and wrong, and with the desire to do right because it was right and to avoid wrong, not from fear of punishment, but because it was wrong. They have been placed on their honor. Their word has been accepted as the truth. They have been given the opportunity of developing and displaying in their school life all the qualities that go to make an honored and respected citizen. Though a very few by dishonesty, lying and deceit have shown themselves unworthy of confidence and respect, still as a whole the conduct and bearing of the pupils have demonstrated that the policy pursued is wise and correct. They appreciate the confidence, the honor, the trust given them and show themselves entirely worthy of such consideration.

In being a little community in itself the school has not kept itself apart from the people and affairs of the valley. It has made most valuable contributions to the intellectual entertainment of the valley. The splendid reditions by the school of "The Merchant of Venice" and of the "Œdipus Rex" are a proud and pleasing memory not only for the school, but also for all who had the good fortune to witness those presentations. With indomitable pluck and energy they sent to the Rose Carnival at Santa Rosa a float which secured valuable prizes and was unanimously considered the most beautiful spectacle in that parade of loveliness. Apart from its own endeavors it has aided materially many of the local affairs and contributed largely to their success.

No examiner or set of examiners can visit the school and determine whether or not it is succeeding or has succeeded in doing its duty to the community, nor can the community itself at once determine. The determination of the wisdom of its purpose and the success of its endeavors rests upon those who graduate from the school. It is for them to show by the beauty, honesty and nobility of their subsequent life whether or not the High School is a benefit and blessing to the community. This is a grave and serious responsibility, but it is one for which the graduates have been prepared and one which they should most gladly accept. They should never loose sight of the fact that they have enjoyed superior advantages and that consequently more is to be expected from them. They must remember that at all times and in all places should evidence the good they have received from their education or else by not so doing declare either that education is a myth or a mockery, or that they have not utilized the advantages which were thers.

To you then, young graduates and to those who have preceded you the High School looks for a living expression of the blessings and benefits it brings to the community.

FIRE AT EL VERANO.

Residence and Barn of Frank Weaver Burned to the Ground.

Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock the residence of Frank Weaver at El Verano, caught fire and was burned to the ground. The fire communicated with the barn and other outbuildings and in a very short time all went up in smoke and flame. The cause of the fire was a defective flue.

When the fire broke out Mr. Weaver was in Sonoma making arrangements for the funeral of his mother-in-law, Mrs. J. B. Chambers, who had died at the Chambers residence near by only a few hours before the fire broke out.

Mr. and Mrs. Weaver lost everything—house, furniture, barn, hay, chicken houses, etc. There was no insurance. The loss was complete.

A SCORCHER.

Yesterday was a corker. A fierce sicorro prevailed all day long. The thermometer at daylight was 80 degrees. From sunrise until well along in the afternoon the mercury steadily advanced until 106 degrees in the shade was registered. Iced drinks were in demand and it is said, although we do not vouch for the truth of the story, that even a staid old one of our prominent churches resorted to a claret punch in order to cool off.

The wind, which blew almost a hurricane at times, threshed considerable fruit off the trees.

Malaria Cured

All Medicines Failed Except Hood's Sarsaparilla

Improved with the First Dose—Now Entirely Well.

Malaria is caused by bad air, bad water, bad drainage, which make bad blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures malaria by purifying the blood. Read this interesting statement:

"I was confined to my bed with malaria. I could not take strong medicines, owing to my condition, and everything I took failed to help me. At last I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After taking it a short time the malaria was entirely gone and I have never had it since. I began to improve with the very first dose of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am now strong and well." MRS. A. M. The Orchestral Concert.

The San Francisco Orchestral Society, under the directorship of Hugh G. Maxwell, gave a concert last Saturday evening at Union Hall. The Orchestral Society on this occasion made its initial bow to a Sonoma audience and was received with genuine enthusiasm. The performance of all the numbers was admirable and there was no lack of variety in the programme. Those who did not comprehend the more classic compositions could not fail to be stimulated to something more than a passive interest, and as for the overture "Raymond," selections from the well-known "Faust," American songs of Foster, and the buoyant charm of Strauss' waltz, "Artist Life," the audience fully intrepreted and enjoyed them. The best numbers were selections from Wagner, Verdi, Gotermann, Rubinstein, Gounod and Gottschalk. The soloists were Miss Claire Hope, soprano, and Mr. Wilhelm Wertsch, 'cello. Miss Hope made a most delightful impression. She was in good voice and her selection, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," by Saint Saens, was well suited to her soprano range. Mr. Wilhelm Wertsch rendered Goltermann's Concert for 'Cello in B. minor. He was well received and showed himself to be a musician of high order. The applause following each number was a tribute to the director, Mr. Maxwell, and expressed the appreciation of those present for the undoubted excellence of the San Francisco Orchestral Society.

THE LATE SENATOR ENOS.

Judge Burnett Awards the Remains to His Daughter.

On Monday last Judge Burnett rendered his decision in the suit entitled Susie T. Enos and Gertrude Willis vs. Rachel J. Snyder. The suit was brought by plaintiffs, wife and daughter, to obtain possession of the body of husband and father, which for several months have reposed in the receiving vault in Mountain Cemetery.

In his decision Judge Burnett holds that the matter is merely one of statutory control, and says that in his judgment there is no doubt as to the correctness of plaintiff's contention in the suit.

FIRE.

Narrow Escape from a Disastrous Conflagration.

Sonoma had another narrow escape from a disastrous conflagration on Thursday morning last. About 6 o'clock L. Quartaroli, proprietor of the City Hotel, discovered flames issuing from the rear of Charley Hoy's wash house, which adjoins his property on the north. A strong wind from the west was blowing at the time and for a few seconds it seemed as though it would be a hopeless task for one man to combat the flames. With a shout that aroused people in the immediate vicinity Mr. Quartaroli ran a ladder up alongside the burning building and threw bucket upon bucket of water upon the burning roof before other aid had arrived. In the meantime the Chinese in the wash house were chow-chowing and making a big commotion, but did nothing except to pack out the contents of the burning building. An alarm of fire was turned in by H. Laux and the firemen promptly responded, and the flames that had been held in abeyance by Mr. Quartaroli were quickly extinguished by the gallant fire laddies. It was a most narrow escape for the west side of town and had it not been for the presence of mind and prompt action of Mr. Quartaroli that part of First-street West from Aguillon's to Wegner's corner would have went up in smoke and flames. The damage to the wash house was slight and $20 will cover the loss.

TOO MUCH BOW.

A San Luis School Boy's Composition.

The following composition, the pages tied together with a blue ribbon, was found the other day by Chas. Ruffner while at work on the old Moore residence on Broadway, which was recently torn down to be replaced by a more modern edifice. We might here add that the boys and girls whose names appear in the paper no longer belong to the rising generation, having reached man and woman's estate. We print the composition verbatim et literatim :

EXERCISES AT SAN LUIS SCHOOL.

"The first thing on the program was a piece by Eva Church, 'Splashing in the brook.' She said her piece fast, was looking out of the window and might have made her bow better.

Ida Goodman read the cridicism Which was listened very attentively by every one. It was very long And she read it very well indeed and made a very good bow.

Joe Kiser spoke a piece by which you may learn many lessons. he spoke it very well and made a good bow, but was looking out of the Window I think the Children think it is lots of fun looking out of the Window.

Victor Donahue spoke a piece about 'Musn't Toucht.' He spoke it well made a good Bow but his piece was very short for a boy of his age.

Richard Watt spoke a piece about long ago. he made a good bow and he spoke it very well indeed.

Zarifa How spoke a piece about twelve blind men and the Elephant She might have known her piece better and speak louder but she made a very good bow.

Maggie Watt spoke a piece She spoke her piece well and made a good bow but her piece was very short.

Frank Manuel spoke a piece but he might have made his Bow 10 times better than he did and might have known his piece better.

THE REPUBLICANS.

MEETING OF COUNTY CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

County Convention to be Held at Cloverdale on August 9th.

The Republican County Central Committee met in Santa Rosa last Saturday for the purpose of selecting the time and place for holding the next County Convention and for the transaction of other business.

The committee was called to order by Chairman O. O. Webber and the following committeemen when the role was called answered "Here": O. O. Webber, Chairman; E. C. Soules, Secretary; J. F. Smith, Treasurer; F. Muther, G. W. Corbin, F. M. Collins, D. Risk, G. B. Baer, Lyman Green, W. F. Graham, H. F. McPeak, H. M. LeBaron, Capt. H. H. McKoon, Sheridan Peterson, I. T. Ward, W. Curtis, Walter Price, J. H. Jacobson, M. J. Hatch, W. J. T. Orr, A. Benjamin, Thos. Denny, H. G. Hahman, Carrol Jones, D. M. Riddle, A. W. Somes.

The question of appointing a committeeman for Sonoma, vice Wm. E. Thomas, resigned, came up for discussion and the question was left to the Executive Committee. The appointment of Frank W. Burris was requested by over two-thirds of the Sonoma Republicans and if his appointment is not forthcoming a solid delegation for him will be elected at the primaries and he will "get there anyhow."

M. K. Cady of Agua Caliente tendered his resignation as a committeeman and J. B. Morris was elected his successor.

J. O. Meeker was elected to succeed W. B. Coy of Occidental, who resigned as committeeman.

The filling of the vacancy in Kenwood caused by the absence of J. W. Staley in Alaska was left to the Executive Committee.

After considerable discussion of several resolutions, all of which were finally withdrawn, it was resolved on motion of J. M. Thompson that the county nominating convention be held at Cloverdale on the second Tuesday of August, the primaries to elect delegates to the same to be held the first Tuesday of August.

It was resolved that the convention to elect delegates to the State Convention, at a time to be hereafter fixed by the Executive Committee, be held at Guerneville.

The question of representation was then considered. It was resolved that there be one delegate for each precinct and one for each 30 votes cast for McKinley and for each fraction of 20 votes, making a convention of 182 delegates.

The hours and places for holding primaries in each precinct were left to each committeeman to arrange and report to the committee.

San Luis School.

The following programme was rendered by the pupils of the San Luis School at their closing exercises on Friday of last week. Much credit is due to the pupils and also to their bright and efficient teacher, Miss Margaret C. Burke. Railway, alive to the interests of both his railway system and the people of Sonoma Valley, has put on fast passenger trains between San Francisco and all stations in this valley. Three trains now arrive and depart daily, two passenger and one freight. This new arrangement will prove a great accommodation to the patrons of the road. The new time card, which appears in another column, went into effect June 29th.

RYLAND—DUHRING.

The Duhring home, "Pine Lodge," was the scene of a brilliant wedding and reception last Wednesday. Miss Agnes June Duhring, only daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Duhring and sister of F. T. Duhring, was married to Caius Tacitus Ryland of San Francisco. Miss Duhring is well-known throughout the valley. She has beauty, great personal attractivness and is heiress to a considerable fortune. Mr. Ryland, the groom, is one of the leading architects of San Francisco. He is a graduate of Santa Clara College, took special work at the University of California and then went to Paris, where he completed his study of architecture. Mr. Ryland is a son of the late millionaire Senator Ryland of San Jose and is a grandson of Peter G. Burnett, California's first Governor.

The wedding ceremony took place at 11 A. M. The spacious parlors, draped artistically in pink and white, formed a beautiful background for the little chancel of sweet peas and smilax. The walls were festooned with mountain ferns, auzelias and smilax and in the bay window hung a handsome wedding bell. Beneath this the Rev. Chas. Raum of St. Mary's Cathedral performed the ceremony which made the young couple man and wife. To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march the bride and her attendants wended their way to the little altar, where the groom and his best man awaited them. The bridesmaid was Miss Gretchen Brunsch of Alameda. She wore white mousselin de soie over yellow taffeta and was escorted by the usher, Wm. Clewe. Miss Doris Clewe was maid of honor. She looked sweet and pretty in a white organdy over white silk. The bride was gowned in white silk mousselin de soie over white taffeta. She wore a long tulle veil, fastened by an elegant diamond sunburst, the gift of the groom. John Wallace Ryland, present postmaster of San Jose, was best man. After the ceremony an elaborate breakfast, catered by Abrahams of San Francisco, was partaken of in a large tent erected on the lawn. Toasts, speeches, songs and orchestral music were in order until 1 o'clock, when reception guests began to arrive. They congratulated the groom, wished all happiness to the bride, listened to music and song and partook of dainty refreshments. About 100 guests were entertained throughout the afternoon.

At 3:30 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Ryland left, amid rice and good cheer, for San Francisco. They were escorted by a greater part of the wedding party. Mrs. Ryland wore a handsome imported tailor gown of gray cloth, with hat to match. Upon their arrival in San Francisco they took a south bound train for the sea side summer resorts, where they will remain for some time. Before taking up their permanent residence in San Francisco they will go to Denver, where they will visit relatives. The presents received were elegant and costly. Among them were two chests of solid silver, silver candelabra, silver service, large brass clock and 11 pieces of crystal.

The Sultan and Our Missionaries.

The Porte has demanded the recall of two American Missionaries from the province of Aleppo, on the pretext that their mission is likely to cause disturbances. "The sick man of Europe" is as unreasonable as his political health is feeble. As a bright contrast to his obstinacy and stupidity, the people of America are acknowledging far and wide the beneficence of the mission of Hostetters Stomach Bitters, namely, to relieve and prevent malaria, rheumatism and kidney complaint, chronic dyspepsia, constipation and liver trouble The nervous, the weak and the infirm derive unspeakable benefit from its use, and it greatly mitigates the weakness and infirmities which are specially incident to advancing years.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, JULY 2, 1898.

Introducing His Fiancee.

There is doubt in some man's mind very often as to when he should make known to his people the girl he hopes to marry. In some cases he prefers that they should become acquainted before the die is cast and he has bound himself to her for better, for worse, by a promise. At other times he has a certain diffidence about introducing them to each other till they know in what position she is to stand toward himself, and the result is that he is a little bewildered. Perhaps in many ways it is more comfortable for a girl to know his people before she is presented to them as a future relative. But circumstances often render this out of the question, and then there is only one correct form of proceeding.

Where his people and hers live in the same place his family must call upon her as soon as they are informed of the engagement. If they live at a distance, they should at once write, welcoming her as a future relative, and it is usual where possible to invite her to stay with them and make their acquaintance. When this is done, it is a more comfortable plan on both sides if the fiance can accompany her and introduce her in person to his people. It is a trying ordeal both to the girl and to her lover's family, this first introduction to each other, and if the lover himself is present—the connecting link of interest between the two—it makes it considerably more agreeable work for every one concerned.—Philadelphia Times.

The Money Making Game.

The first of all English games is making money. That is an all absorbing game, and we knock each other down oftener in playing at that than at football or any other rougher sport, and it is absolutely without purpose. No one who engages heartily in that game ever knows why. Ask a great money maker what he wants to do with his money—he never knows. He doesn't make it to do anything with it. He gets it only that he may get it. "What will you make of what you have got?" you ask. "Well, I'll get more," he says. Just as at cricket you get more runs. There's no use in the runs, but to get more of them than other people is the game. And there's no use in the money, but to have more of it than other people is the game. So all that great foul city of London there—rattling, growling, smoking, stinking—a ghastly heap of fermenting brickwork, pouring out poison at every pore—you fancy it is a city of work? Not a street of it! It is a great city of play; very nasty play, and very hard play, but still play. It is only Lord's cricket ground without the turf—a huge billiard table without the cloth, and with pockets as deep as the bottomless pit, but mainly a billiard table after all.—John Ruskin.

Cromwell.

Cromwell kept quiet during the years in which Charles was governing without a parliament. He is not heard of as resisting the payment of ship money or even as setting at defiance the ecclesiastical courts. Clearly he was no ambitious firebrand, but a man under authority, whose aim it was to carry obedience to the utmost limits consistent with his personal duty. This, too, is characteristic of the man and displays itself again and again in his prolonged hesitations to break with established authority.

In his conservative dislike to hasty changes, combined with religion influencing the conduct as well as the creed, Cromwell was a fair representative of the better part of England, none the less because when once his reluctance to step forward had vanished he was capable of administering heavy blows against those who blocked the way too persistently even for his patience and because when once he had broken with the past no going back was any longer possible for him.—"Cromwell's Place In History," by S. R. Gardiner.

She Knew Him.

Mrs. K. had engaged a robust, middle aged colored woman to do some housecleaning. During the progress of the work Mrs. K. said:

"A colored man came along here one day last week and wanted work, and I let him wash some windows, but he did not do the work at all well."

"What fo' lookin man was he?" asked the helper.

"Well, he was a big, strong fellow, and he had but one eye. He said that his name was White. He did very poor work."

"I specs he did, lady. He's de wus' no 'count in dis town."

"Oh, then you know him?"

"Know 'im? Why, lady, I'ze mah'ied to 'im!"—Harper's Bazar.

African Expressions.

"Africans," writes a missionary, "have some very striking expressions, showing that they are full of poetical ideas. The Mcongues call thunder 'the sky's gun,' and the morning is with them 'the day's child.' The Zulus call the twilight 'the eyelashes of the sun.' An African who came to America was shown some ice, which he had not seen before, and he called it 'water fast asleep.'"

Cruel Retort.

"I have no patience with your democratic sentimentalism," said Miss Elderly with hauteur. "Blood tells, and my ancestors fought in the revolution, Miss Sprightly."

"I suppose you were too young to recall any incidents of the struggle?"—Detroit Free Press.

The Frankfurter Zeitung states that among 72 agents who make it a business to secure engagements for German actors no fewer than 15 were found to be men who had been punished for some crime or other.

The annual increase of the German nation during the last five years has been more than five times as much as that of the French.

HER SOUL UNBURDENED.

A Young Bride's Confession In the Waning of the Honeymoon.

Charley Wheeler and Lucille Sprockett had been married nearly three weeks, and they had just returned from their wedding trip. They were supremely happy in each other's love, and the honeymoon so far had been to them as one long, blissful dream. Within the next day or two, however, the bride grew slightly depressed in spirits, and an uneasy feeling seemed to take possession of her. The young husband noticed the change, but attributed it to fatigue from the recent travels. But his bride grew more nervous and took on such a troubled expression that he said to her:

"You have something on your mind, darling, that is troubling you. Tell me what it is."

At first she tried to persuade him that he was mistaken, that nothing worried her.

"You are wrong, Charley, dear," she would say. "Really, I am not worrying over anything. I am just as happy as I can be."

The day following, however, the young wife wore such a troubled look that her husband said to her:

"Lucille, you must tell me what is troubling you. I will not be put off any longer. As your husband I have a right to know."

Seeing that further concealment was impossible, she broke down and sobbed bitterly:

"Oh, Charley, I am so unhappy!" she wailed. "I have—deceived—you."

A sickening sensation swept over the young husband. Surely there must be some mistake. She, whom he had looked upon as the personification of innocent womanhood—deceive him! It must not be. It would destroy his happiness and blight his life. And then, when he caught a sudden vision of the horrible possibilities of the situation, he became sick at heart and almost fell to the floor. Then, with a great effort, he controlled his feelings.

"Tell me," he said. "I am prepared for the worst."

"Oh, Charley, I am so sorry!"

"You should have thought of this before."

"I know, I know. I see my mistake, now it's too late," she cried. "Oh, why didn't I tell you before we were married?"

"Tell me now, and be quick about it. I cannot bear this suspense."

"Tell me first that you will forgive me," she said in pleading tones. "I will devote my whole life in atonement for this one mistake."

"I cannot promise until I know what it is," he said.

Then she came over and knelt at his feet.

"Oh, Charley, you know the wheel I got just a few weeks before we were married"—

"Yes; but what has that"—

"Why, I bought it—on the—installment plan—$4 a month—and have only paid—one installment. And I just know the collector will be—here tomorrow. Oh, Charley," she sobbed, "can you ever forgive me?"—Ohio State Journal.

Brute Instinct.

Natural laws pertain to all things, and certain laws govern the conduct of brute society. But that the actions of the lower animals are ever prompted by a sense of duty is not only extremely hypothetical, but altogether doubtful. The hen has strong maternal affection, but that she has the least idea of the virtue of that affection any more than of the virtue of doing good for evil is in the extreme conjectural. It is often hard and even impossible to account for the likes and dislikes of animals. The hen will sometimes destroy certain of her brood and the sow devour her own offspring. Much of the cruelty is practiced upon the brutes for the lack of thought that they are not morally responsible. They are treated as if they are conscious of wickedly selfish acts. I once saw some men looking at a drowning mouse in a pail of water. I rebuked them, and one of them—a man perhaps 40 years old—turned to me and said, "The mouse deserves it." Why deserved it? Pray tell us. Shall we say it was conscious of the sin of thieving? Others may try to view it in that way. I do not. I knew another man who would hold rats with a fork and roast them alive in the fire. If he could not prove that they deserved their torture, he certainly wished to believe they did. If we recognize a Creator, is it not most rational to suppose that he has created the brutes morally irresponsible and would have us thus regard them, that our inclination to torture them would be held in restraint?—Forest and Stream.

Where a Man Must Speak Up.

"I had occasion the other day, for the first time," said a sober minded citizen, "to go up high in one of the modern tall buildings. I called on a man in the seventeenth story. It certainly was tremendous the way they hoisted us up that shaft, with a smooth start and easy stops and lightning between. But the most impressive thing about the trip was this: A man who got on where I did, at the ground floor, and who wanted to get off at the tenth floor, said 'Tenth,' as it seemed to me, the instant we started up, but the elevator man said: 'This is the twelfth. We'll stop going down.'

"If there is a place on earth where a man needs to speak up, it appears to be in the modern elevator car."—New York Sun.

London Architecture.

Not long ago an English architect was heard to make a curiously suggestive remark. Conversation had turned upon the manifold dangers to which we expose ourselves by traveling in railway carriages. "The great rule," said this architect, "is never to look out of the window until you are a good 30 miles from London. Otherwise you risk seeing the Crystal palace."

ONE OF TWO WAYS.

The bladder was created for one purpose, namely, a receptacle for the urine, and as such is not liable to any form of disease except by by one of two ways. The first way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from careless local treatment of other diseases.

Chief Cause.

Unhealthy urine from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles. So the womb, like the bladder, was created for one purpose, and if not doctored too much is not liable to weakness or disease, except in rare cases. It is situated back of and very close to the bladder, therefore any pain, disease or inconvenience manifested in the kidneys, back, bladder or urinary passages is often, by mistake, attributed to female weakness or womb trouble of some sort. The error is easily made and may be as easily avoided. To find out correctly, set your urine aside for twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates kidnes or bladder trouble. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At druggists fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail. Mention the Index-Tribune and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.
